Fishermen Trials.

On Tuesday last, at the break of day, Three fishermen merry started away, But alas, for the hopes of the sports- men gay, The sunshine turned to a dull, dark gray, Without thought of rain formiles they stray, Until a dead head in their way did lay, But gone were their hopes so they say As to a shanty they hurry away. The people were kind and invited them in, Saying to be wet it was a sin. They dried their clothes and ate their lunch, But down it surely was, without punch. So on they go as their hopes ascend, For they have one lone fish they must attend. All goes well as on they float Until a sweeper strikes their boat. When without warning two fishermen gay In the bottom of the boat did lay. Four hundred thirty together they weigh, The other a light weight so they say Up set the boat as he sprang away. Out they went and floundered around, Until they finally ran her aground. Then with the tide they had a race. For the folks at home they could not face, Without their rods and reels and bas- kets too, So what was there for the fishermen to do, But to the recreation club to flee. And some dry clothes try to see. Then Fred Rose they had to bribe, To bring them home and the funny tribe They caught that day on a stormy ride. No more a fishing they'll go on the side For to them it was a disappointing tide.

Here's a Dead One.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who never to himself has said: "My trade of late is getting bad; I'll try another ten-inch ad." If such there be, go mark him well; for him no bank account shall swell, no angels watch the golden stairs to welcome in the millionaire. The man who never asks for trade by local line or ad displayed cares more for rest than worldly gain and patronage but gives him pain. Tread lightly, friends, let no rude sound disturb his solitude profound, here let him live in calm repose, unsought except by men he owes, and when he dies go plant him deep that naught may brake his dreamless sleep, where no rude clamor may dispel the quiet that he loved so well. And that the world may know its loss, place on his grave a wreath of moss, and on the stone above "Here lies a chump who wouldn't ad-tise."—Ex.

As to Uses of Soap.

Can soap be done without? According to a member of the English public, it is quite an unnecessary article, and man may be kept clean with plain water. Nations have risen to greatness without soap. Ancient Rome, our old familiar companion, Rome, knew nothing of soap until she came in contact with the Germans and the Gauls, who used it to brighten the color of the hair. Once or twice soap is mentioned in the Old Testament, but it doesn't mean the city substance that it is today. Painful as it is for Americans who have lived in England to admit, it would be better for general comfort if more soap was used there. Thus, instead of advancing its cost, let it be lessened and no place the cleansing article within the reach of all. But the new soap combine doesn't view the situation in that light, probably. It takes the cake and the public pays.

FOUNDATION OF GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

By Governor Hughes.
Underlying all other needs is the cultivation of individual strength of character, of self-respect, and of the sense of personal honor. You do not make a man a better man by putting him in the employ of the State. Nor is the fellow who criticizes everybody else, but is quietly looking out for a chance to get a little graft himself, the sort of man who will improve the public service.

The employer who will oppress his men and treat them unfairly will oppress the people if he gets a chance. And the employer who will cheat his employer, or the representative of a union who will betray it for his own advantage, will cheat and betray the public if he is put in office.

The man who thinks the first object in life is to serve himself, and who thinks that the American idea is "every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost," will never be a faithful servant of the people.

So that it is in the schools and the settlements, in the various institutions and organizations where men and women, boys and girls, are taught to be square, and that there are limits which personal honor and the sense of right and justice will not permit to be exceeded, no matter what selfish advantage is to be gained, and that there are public rights and the interests of the community which are above all mere individual considerations, that we find the security for good government and the prosperity of the people.

And I believe most strongly in the cultivation of the religious principle and of the faith in the supremacy of the power that makes for righteousness, upon which all else that I have spoken of is based.

CULTIVATE SELF-ESTEEM.

By Juliet V. Strauss.
Nobody's life is a failure unless he himself considers it so. If it suits him, that is all that is necessary. A man may be a bore, he may be utterly useless and inefficient, or he may be unendurably officious and always bobbing up at the wrong time, but so long as he doesn't know it is he is fortunate above everybody else.

There is a certain class of people whom I often think are more to be envied than any others, and that is they who are hopelessly bad form and do not know it. They are handsome, they are elaborate, they are stylish. What more could be desired? Their secret-ty in coldly tramping down all the unwritten laws of good taste is a terror to beholders, and has a humorous side calculated to make a cow laugh.

There is only one sort of person who is funnier, and that is one who is just as hopelessly good form. Some form is so good that it is bad, and people who are afflicted with this laborious sort are truly ponderous. Their efforts are as unlike the consummate social grace of those to the manner born as is the playing of the person we used to call a "bumble puppy" at what is to that of the real whist player. The "bumble puppy," however, is all right, because he thinks he is.

It is only when we become a little bit doubtful of our own success that we begin to be pitiable, and people like us from pillar to post. People like impudence; they like duplicity; they like vanity; they like display. If you are meek and modest, mild and meritorious, just get ready to turn the other cheek, for you will have reason to do so. If the thought that perhaps, after all, you are not the smartest thing in town begins to creep into your deluded cranium, expel it, as you would any other poisonous sentiment. Remember you are the center of the universe, and let that thought console you: give your hat a little tilt over your nose and step out jauntily, for if you sink, somebody will throw a rock at you as he sits a tin can to your coat tail.

YOUNG FOLKS, REMEMBER MOTHER.

By Zelma Travers.
There are very few young people who ever stop to consider the tremendous debt they owe to their mothers. In the rush of everyday life the mother, with her unselfish devotion, shrinks to the side and is left there to be neglected by those for whom her life has been one long sacrifice.

Mothers demand very little in return for the long nights of broken rest and watchfulness they spent when you were a child, so remember, girls, that a little smile and a kind word will go a great way to pay up the debt you owe.

Mothers like fun once in a while just as much as you do, so don't exclude them from your pleasure. Take them into your confidence and tell them your secrets. You won't find a better friend than the mother who will please your mother more than the little gift you purchase to surprise her. A mother is never so proud as when she is taken out by her son. Don't be ashamed, boys, to show her this attention. Let her feel that you, too, are proud to be seen with her.

Show her the courtesy that you are in the habit of giving your girl acquaintances, and you will be repaid when you see the great happiness that will brighten up her worn face.

SHOULD RULE ROADS.

PRESIDENT ASKS FEDERAL CONTROL OF RAIL LINES.

Would Establish Supervision Analogous to That of Banks—Laws Needed to Restrict Trust—Much of Overcapitalization Talk Resolved.

At Indianapolis on Memorial Day President Roosevelt delivered the principal address at the unveiling of a monument to General Henry W. Lawton. The speech was devoted to a discussion of railway problems, and incidentally paid a warm tribute to Oliver Morton, the late Governor of Indiana.

The President in his address came out in favor of control over the Federal Government of all railroads doing an interstate business, and also said that it would not be amiss to demand Government supervision of all purely State roads as well, since the latter, as mail carriers, are in a measure responsible to the national Government.

The President would establish a system of supervision analogous to that extended over national banks, and he contended that public confidence in railroads will not be fully restored until such a supervision is legalized by congressional enactment.

The Chief Executive stated that much of the talk of overcapitalization of railroads now going on in this country is without foundation in fact, and that, in the consensus of opinion of investors, the total value of stock and bonds is greater than their total face value, notwithstanding the "water" that has been injected in certain places.

The Hepburn bill, he said, which gives the Interstate Commerce Commission absolute control over the accounts of the various interstate roads, is a great step in the proper direction.

The President said in part: For more than one reason I am peculiarly glad that this year I speak on Memorial Day in the State of Indiana. There is no other class of our citizens to whom we owe so much as to the veterans of the great war. They have long labored to perform the one feat with which no other feat can be compared, for to them it is to preserve the Union.

Moreover, you men who were the blue, blessed beyond the victors in any other war of recent times, have left to your countrymen more than the material results of the triumph, more than the laurels of the victory. You have left a country so genuinely reunited that all of us, in whatever part of this Union we live, have a right to feel the keener pride, not only in the valor and self-devotion of you, the gallant men who were the blue, but also in the valor and self-devotion of your gallant opponents who were the gray.

The power of the nation must be exerted to stop crimes of cunning no less than the crimes of violence. Every Federal law dealing with corporations or with railroads that has been put upon the statute books during the last six years has been a step in the right direction.

There can be no swerving from the course that has been actually enacted and in the message in which I asked for further legislation.

We best serve the interest of the honest railroad men when we announce that we will not allow the law to be swayed by the facts; a suit in the interest of the people as a whole, and in the long run, particularly in the interest of stockholders, as well as in the interest of business generally.

There must be progressive legislation and administrative action for the correction of the evils which every sincere man must admit to have existed in railroad management in the past.

Such additional legislation as that for which I have asked in the past, and especially that for which I ask in my message at the opening of the next session of Congress, is not merely in the interest of the public, but most emphatically in the interest of every honest way manager and of all investors or would-be investors in railway securities.

Must Have Full Power.

There must be vested in the Federal Government a full power of supervision and control over the railroads doing interstate business; a power in many respects analogous to that which is now vested in the Government over the national banks. It must possess the power to exercise supervision over the future of stocks and bonds, either through a national incorporation (which I should prefer) or some other method of supervision.

It should be declared contrary to public policy henceforth to allow railroads to devote their capital to anything but the transportation business, certainly not to hazardous speculation.

The business of railroad organization and management should be kept entirely distinct from investment or brokerage business.

The movement to regulate railroads by law has come to stay. The people of this country have made up their minds to exercise a closer control over all kinds of public service corporations. Every honestly managed railway will gain and not lose by the policy.

The great need of the hour from the standpoint of the general public is the need for better transportation facilities with the least possible delay. Ample, safe and rapid transportation facilities are even more necessary than cheap transportation.

We who believe in steady and healthy progress stand unalterably for the new era of widest publicity, and of fair dealing on the part of railroads with stockholders, passengers and shippers.

As a matter of course we shall punish any criminal whom we can convict under the law; but we have no intention of confounding the innocent many and the guilty few by any ill-judged and sweeping scheme of vengeance.

Wherever evil doers can be they shall be brought to justice; and no criminal, high or low, whom we can reach will receive immunity.

There must be no such rigid laws as will prevent the development of the country, and such development can only be had if investors are offered an ample reward for the risk they take.

There has been much wild talk as to the extent of the overcapitalization of our railroads. The census reports on the commercial value of the railroads of the country, together with the reports made to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the railroads, tend to show that, as a whole, the railroad property of the country is worth as much as the securities representing it.

Ample provision should be made by Congress to enable the Interstate Commerce Commission to undertake the physical valuation of each and any road in the country.

Physician valuation is no panacea, but it will be ultimately needed as an essential instrument in administrative supervision. The effect of such valuation and supervision of securities cannot be retroactive.

There need be no fear on the part of investors that this movement for a national supervision and control over railroads will be for their detriment.

I ask that full power be given the Federal Government, because no single State can by legislation effectively cope with these powerful corporations in interstate commerce.

There must be just and reasonable regulation of rates. There can be no question as to the desirability of doing away with rebates or any method of favoring one shipper at the expense of a competitor.

I emphatically believe that positive restraint should be imposed upon railway corporations, and that they should be required to meet positive obligations in the interest of the general public.

Let the local attorneys of the big roads keep out of politics; and when they have to appear before the National or any State Legislature let their names be put on a special register, and let their business be above board and open. There are blackmailers in public life.

Let the men of wealth remember that while using and enjoying it he must nevertheless feel that he is in a sense a trustee.

There are many who will talk as if the extent of the overcapitalization of our railroads is a matter of mere opinion. The census reports on the commercial value of the railroads of the country, together with the reports made to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the railroads, tend to show that, as a whole, the railroad property of the country is worth as much as the securities representing it, and that the real value is greater than the face value is probably true. No general statement such as this can be accepted as having more than a general value; there are many exceptions; but the evidence is so ample that the great mass of our railroad securities rest upon safe and solid foundations.

There is an essential difference between private and quasi-public property which justifies setting somewhere a limit beyond which the accumulating value in quasi-public property, due to the necessity of a growing community, shall not be capitalized.

One of the most important features of the Hepburn act is its having given the commission absolute control over the accounts of railroads. "The commission has just issued an order to the effect that on and after July 1st all railroads must submit, subject to the jurisdiction of the commission, must standardize their accounting methods, and the commission is now organizing a bureau of special examiners. Its duty it will be, among other things, to see that the books of the carriers are kept in conformity with the rules laid down by the commission."

These means are already at hand and when perfected, will put the public in position to know the facts, so that the small investor or exorbitant stockholder, when making an intelligent judgment, will not be misled by the promoters of great railway enterprises. We hope as one of the chief means for bettering the management of railroads, and to complete publicity in the affairs of railroads as now obtains with regard to national banks.

There need be no fear on the part of investors that this movement for national supervision and control over railroads will be for their detriment. If they doubt this, let them study the history of the railway-control movement in such States as Iowa. It would be hard to find any where a more prosperous or more intelligent community; a community of thriving farmers and shrewd business men. Iowa did its share in the work of building railroads when the business was one

MICHIGAN LAWMAKERS.

Will Have Much Patronage.

If the bill passed by the House the other day becomes a law, Charles Pierce, at present clerk of the House, who will become State game, fish and fire warden on July 1, will be quite an important official and will have more pay to dispense than any other State official. A number of game and fish bills were considered on special order, the most important one relating to the preservation of the forests from fire. It empowers the warden to appoint three chief deputy fire wardens at $1,200 each, not more than twenty deputies at $1,000 each and township wardens in the district affected who are to be paid $2 a day for not more than fifteen days a year except under special orders. All supervisors are made deputy fire wardens, so that the upper peninsula will be pretty thoroughly populated with State officials. The bill carries an appropriation of $10,000, exclusive of salaries. The effort to establish a schedule of fishing license fees has failed. Resident hunters will not have to pay a general license, but non-residents will have to pay $10. The deer license will remain the same, but a provision was inserted forbidding county clerks from issuing licenses previous to five days before the season. This will work a hardship, as it takes several weeks to make out the licenses in Houghton county.

Revised Railroad Commission Bill.

Both branches of the Legislature held short sessions Friday morning. In the House Representative Seidmore introduced a revised edition of the railroad commission bill that has been under consideration in the Senate committee for some weeks. It was prepared by Railroad Commissioner Glasgow and aims to eliminate some of the features considered objectionable in the two previous measures. It eliminates the clause relating to the control of railroad employees by the commission. The demurrage provision is modified, as are also several other sections, but the railroads are still compelled to make physical connections with electric lines. Senator Kinnear also engaged in drafting a substitute bill. As things are lined up the Senate and House will never agree. In fact, it is extremely doubtful that the Senate will be able to pass a bill and it is now practically certain that no commission bill will be passed this session.

Special Session Rather Remote.

The House finally fixed June 19 and 20 as the dates for adjournment. A few wanted to get away earlier and one Representative held out for June 24, the day that the circus is in town, but he did not pass the word around quick enough. While there is more or less talk about a special session, that matter is really a remote one at this time. If the people should adopt a new constitution a special session would be imperative in order to provide the necessary statutory enactments. Should the constitution be rejected, which is regarded as most likely, it would then be up to the Governor to decide whether he possesses sufficient subject matter to warrant the calling of a special session.

Roosevelt Said Go Slow.

Senator Seelye has introduced a new railroad commission bill as a second substitute could not be reported out. The bill is much milder than either of the first two considered. On the House side Representative Seidmore has introduced the measure prepared by Railroad Commissioner Glasgow. As a matter of fact, there is very little hope of a commission bill being passed, there being such a wide difference of opinion as to the powers that should be invested in such a body. President Roosevelt is credited with having advised the Governor to go slow with railroad legislation and to let the interstate commerce commission work out the problems now under consideration.

New Idea for State Fair.

Representative Alford introduced a bill which provides for the creation of a planning body for the State Fair Association. It authorizes the Governor to appoint a director from each congressional district, makes the Lieutenant Governor ex-officio president and the director of the Michigan experiment station a member, and authorizes the State game, fish and stock association, the State Horticultural Society and the State Agricultural Society to elect one member each. Twenty-one in all. The holdings of the society are limited to $200,000. Whether the bill will pass is a question, but it can be put through if all the parties interested favor the measure.

Clearing the Decks.

An immense amount of work has been disposed of by both branches of the Legislature in order to clear the decks of all routine matters and give time for the consideration of half a dozen important measures that have yet to be considered and a number of appropriation bills. The House passed in one day thirty bills, including the Senate bill to compel automobiles to carry numbers on the front as well as the rear.

Amend Indeterminate Act.

An important bill passed by the Senate amends the indeterminate act by giving judges authority to fix maximum sentences which are now fixed by statute. It also provides that the minimum sentence must be at least half the maximum, and that prisoners who have good behavior to their credit must be released at the expiration of the minimum period. Machinery is also provided for their securing a hearing.

Miners Can Get Timber.

By a vote of 61 to 10 the House passed the bill removing the limitation on the holdings of land by mining companies in the State, which was asked for by the iron mining companies in order to insure an adequate supply of timber in the future. One Representative who opposed the bill on the ground that it would prevent the consolidation of all the iron and copper properties, and the Governor has been asked for a hearing before he signs the measure.

Silver and Kings for Michigan.

The Senate passed an appropriation of $100,000 for silver mines and also for the butterfly Michigan. This includes the appointment of a commission to investigate the silver mines and to report on the feasibility of their being worked.

Radical Fish Law.

The Senate has passed a radical measure empowering the State game and fish warden to seize, condemn and sell all boats and nets and other fishing gear known to have been used in violation of the laws of the State.

MADE ABJECT APOLOGY.

The Minister Who Married Millionaire Corey to Mabelle Gilman.

If ever a man made an abject apology for an act which he admitted was an offense against religion, society and morals, that man was Rev. John L. Clark, pastor of a Congregational church in New York City. Clark was the man who married William Ellis Corey, the millionaire president of the United States Steel Corporation, to Mabelle Gilman, the actress. Corey by his life had practically forced his wife, who had married him when he was poor and who had helped him in his fight for fame and fortune, to sue for divorce. Before this action his name was associated with that of the Gilman woman and the divorce was necessary in order that he might marry the stage beauty. Corey appealed to several Episcopal ministers to officiate, but to their credit they refused. Only the weakness of a Congregational minister removed the necessity of a civil marriage instead of a religious one.

Clark's congregation was so indignant that to save his place, he had returned the princely fee he had received, made a most abject apology, acknowledged his sin before the world and begged for forgiveness. This was finally granted, on his promise never again to disgrace his holy calling.—Titica Globe.

RED TOPS AND COPPER TOES.

The Boy of Old and His First Pair of Boots.

It was the sight of a little pair of boots with shiny red tops and copper toes that stirred memories. They were sturdy, reliable of a time when progress and modern ways had not come upon us and changed us so much.

Now, when a boy reaches the age of 14, we give him a safety razor, and he takes his girl out riding in a hired automobile.

In the old days, in the time of the simple life and the straight talk, your boots were the pride and joy of your heart. They had shiny red tops and the copper looked like gold, and every a chill touched the legs of the boy who wore them. If you will remember, you and father paid a visit to the shoe shop early in September, and the boots came home with you. They plucked some at first, for a boy who has gone barefoot all summer has feet like pancakes. You tried them on the walk in front of your house and oh, joy! what a musical squeak they made and how they seemed to proclaim: "New boots! new boots!" which is a very fine message.

HATCHING SNAKES—SOMETHING NEW IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

The photographs shown above are among the most unusual on record. Probably not more than a half dozen persons, all told, have ever seen young snakes emerging from the eggs, and it is not known that they were ever before photographed. The snakes are of the viper and viperine varieties.

Then on Saturday night father groaned, rubbing the oil well in, and you put in your days hoping for a change in the weather. Indian summer, the drifting leaves, warm sunshine and soft breezes grew positively lateful, and you wondered what people would do if it stayed hot all winter and if the things that made it grow cold had slipped a cog, and the cherry trees would blossom on Christmas day.

And then, one night you heard the wind whistling in the chimney and you snuggled down in bed and went to sleep again, and mother had to call you four times before you hopped out of your warm nest, and glory be, there was frost on the window pane and a pair of red-top boots waiting for a boy just your size down by the kitchen stove. How warm and nice they felt as you slipped them on over your woolen socks, and soon you were slipping along the frosted grass in the back yard. You broke the ice on sundry puddles. You walked through the cornfield, where the frost had hardened the ground, and the crunch! crunch! said: "New boots! new boots!"

And then, one day the storm came. Grandfather said that the old woman up above was picking her geese, and there were drifts for the new boots to play through, and a path to be made to the wood pile, and later, when the ice on the big pond was glazy, those same little boots slid across until your breath came fast.

You were as warm as toast. Well did those little red-top boots do their work. At church you were sure that people were admiring them, and at Sunday school how glad you were you had them on when the superintendent put his hand on your head and told father you were a fine fellow.

And then came spring and the snow melted and the blossoms came and the red-top boots were forgotten, and you never knew that they were wrapped in paper and laid away with other keepsakes, and that years later a gray-haired woman carried them with low, lined touches and shed tears because her boy who had grown up to be a great big man and gone out into the world.

With such authority to rest upon there is no reason to doubt that ambitious students will quickly increase the demand for midnight oil.

Daintily If Not Substantial.

The wife of a farmer had a sister come from Chicago to make a visit. One day the thrashers came, and the guest insisted on doing the work alone and sent her sister away to rest. When twenty-seven thrashers filed in to supper that night they found a sandwich tied with ribbon, one chicken croquette, one cheese ball the size of a marble and a buttonhole bouquet at each plate.—Emporia (Kan.) WORK WHILE OTHERS SLEEP.

From 2 to 5 A. M. the mind is at its best.

The old theory that one hour of sleep before midnight is worth two hours after may be at the bottom of the newest theory of effective work. At any rate, Professor Victor Hillebrand, of the Paris Academy of Medicine, says that the best intellectual work is done between midnight and dawn. His explanation follows:

The true secret of long-continued, valuable brain-work is to cut the night in two. The scholar, the inventor, the financier, the literary creator, should be asleep every night by 10 o'clock, to wake again at, say, 2 in the morning. Three hours' work, from 2 to 5, in the absolute tranquillity of the silent hours, should mean the revealing of new powers, new possibilities, a wealth of ideas undreamed of under the prevailing system.

From 5 to 8 or 8:30 sleep again. Take up again the day's work; the brain will still be saturated with the mental fruits of the night-vigil; there will be no effort in putting into practice or carrying forth what was planned or begun those few hours before.

The habit may be hard to acquire, but mechanical means of waking, at first, will induce the predisposition. Lord has long had the habit of so working, and declares his best thoughts, his clearest intellectual vision, his choicest phrases, come to him when he works fresh from sleep, with all the world still in dreamland about him.

With such authority to rest upon there is no reason to doubt that ambitious students will quickly increase the demand for midnight oil.

How easy it is to suggest a remedy for other people's ills!

One great problem that we have before us is to preserve the rights of property; and these can only be preserved if we maintain a law of property from the Socialist and the anarchist. It is the duty of the nation to maintain the power of the nation to restrain the wrongs committed by the man of great wealth who does well to only to neglect the interests of the public, but is in perfect disregard of the man of means who not honorably by his means.

The power of the nation must be exerted to stop crimes of cunning no less than crimes of violence. There can be no halting in the course that has been actually enacted and in the message in which I asked for further legislation.

Control of Common Carriers.

Today I wish to say a word to you about the first and most important feature of this task, the control of the common countrymen more than the material results of the triumph, more than the laurels of the victory. You have left a country so genuinely reunited that all of us, in whatever part of this Union we live, have a right to feel the keener pride, not only in the valor and self-devotion of you, the gallant men who were the blue, but also in the valor and self-devotion of your gallant opponents who were the gray.

The power of the nation must be exerted to stop crimes of cunning no less than the crimes of violence. Every Federal law dealing with corporations or with railroads that has been put upon the statute books during the last six years has been a step in the right direction.

There can be no swerving from the course that has been actually enacted and in the message in which I asked for further legislation.

We best serve the interest of the honest railroad men when we announce that we will not allow the law to be swayed by the facts; a suit in the interest of the people as a whole, and in the long run, particularly in the interest of stockholders, as well as in the interest of business generally.

There must be progressive legislation and administrative action for the correction of the evils which every sincere man must admit to have existed in railroad management in the past.

Such additional legislation as that for which I have asked in the past, and especially that for which I ask in my message at the opening of the next session of Congress, is not merely in the interest of the public, but most emphatically in the interest of every honest way manager and of all investors or would-be investors in railway securities.

Must Have Full Power.

There must be vested in the Federal Government a full power of supervision and control over the railroads doing interstate business; a power in many respects analogous to that which is now vested in the Government over the national banks. It must possess the power to exercise supervision over the future of stocks and bonds, either through a national incorporation (which I should prefer) or some other method of supervision.

It should be declared contrary to public policy henceforth to allow railroads to devote their capital to anything but the transportation business, certainly not to hazardous speculation.

The business of railroad organization and management should be kept entirely distinct from investment or brokerage business.

There must be just and reasonable regulation of rates. There can be no question as to the desirability of doing away with rebates or any method of favoring one shipper at the expense of a competitor.

I emphatically believe that positive restraint should be imposed upon railway corporations, and that they should be required to meet positive obligations in the interest of the general public.

Let the local attorneys of the big roads keep out of politics; and when they have to appear before the National or any State Legislature let their names be put on a special register, and let their business be above board and open. There are blackmailers in public life.

Let the men of wealth remember that while using and enjoying it he must nevertheless feel that he is in a sense a trustee.

There need be no fear on the part of investors that this movement for a national supervision and control over railroads will be for their detriment.

I ask that full power be given the Federal Government, because no single State can by legislation effectively cope with these powerful corporations in interstate commerce.

A STUDY IN "SPARKS"

When is a Diamond Not to Be Classed as a Precious Stone? When is a diamond not a precious stone? asks the Boston Transcript. This question was involved in a recent hearing which occurred in the appraiser's office at Boston. It involved the classification for duty of an importation of diamonds intended for industrial purposes. These particular diamonds were to be used as bearings in electric motors. The diamonds were brownish in color and each had one surface cut and polished. Duty was assessed upon them at the rate of 10 per cent ad valorem, but the importers claimed free entry for them, contending that they were what is known in trade as "bort," that is, diamonds which are used exclusively for industrial purposes. The proponent of the evidence showed that at the present time the diamonds in the condition that they were imported would not be known as rose diamonds, and that they cannot be commercially cut and adapted to jewelry purposes in this country.

The treasury department has decided in favor of the protestants, the officials here taking the ground that for tariff purposes the department is concerned only with the question as to how the diamonds in question would have been regarded at the time the tariff act of 1897 was passed. It is held that present conditions are not material to the case, and that therefore it is not of importance whether or not in view of the continuous advance in the price of all grades of diamonds during the last ten years, the better qualities of bort could be cut into the form of rose diamonds. It was held that this particular importation of diamonds at Boston was intended for industrial purposes, and would have been known in 1897 as "bort" and that therefore they are so to be regarded today. This entitles them to free entry and the 10 per cent duty exacted of the importers at Boston will be returned to them as a result of this decision.

WASHINGTON Gossip

Three companies of grizzled "Johnnie Rebs," armed with muskets and sabers which they one day used against the national government, marched up Pennsylvania avenue under a special permit from the district commissioners, stacked their antiquated arms outside the President's office in the White house grounds, deposited their furled battle flags, planted the Stars and Stripes, which had headed their picturesque column, and marched in to be received by the President of the United States with a handshake and a smile as hearty as any he ever has given to veterans who wore the blue. The mission of these Southern veterans was to invite the President to Nashville.

It was said to be the first time that Confederate veterans in their old gray uniforms, bearing arms and carrying the furled flags of the Confederacy, preceded by the Star Spangled Banner, ever marched up Pennsylvania avenue. Be that as it may, the sight was a picturesque one, and it could hardly have been witnessed in the capital of any other country on earth. Nothing could better have illustrated the obliteration of the passions of the war time than this advent of white haired Confederate soldiers in the capital of the nation received by the President, although they were in the uniforms which stamped them as having resisted the authority of the national government with arms. They were enthusiastically welcomed by the Southerners in Washington, and particularly the ladies, but even these friendly greetings were as nothing to that of scores of Union soldiers who are still to be found everywhere about the capital, and who welcomed their old antagonists with a perfect fusillade of Yankee cheers, the shouts being answered with somewhat husky reminiscences of the famous "rebel yell."

AFRAID OF PARALYSIS

A NERVOUS SUFFERER CURED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

The Medicine That Makes Rich, Red Blood and Performs Wonders as a Tonic for the Nerves.

Why are nervous people invariably pale people? The answer to that question explains why a remedy that acts on the blood can cure nervous troubles.

It explains why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are also for nervous people.

It is because of the intimate relation between the red corpuscles in the blood and the health of the nerves. The nervous system receives its nourishment through the blood. Let the blood become thin, weak and colorless and the nerves are starved—their action is started on the road that leads to nervous wreck.

Nervous people are pale people—but the pale comes first. Enrich the blood and the nerves are stimulated and toned up to do their part of the work of the body. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make red blood and transform nervous, irritable, ailing people into strong, energetic, forceful men and women.

Mrs. Elmer E. Porter, of 20 Liberty street, New Bedford, Mass., says: "I had never been ill since childhood and a few years ago I began to have dizzy spells. At such times I could not walk straight. I was afraid of paralysis and was on the verge of nervous prostration. Then I began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I found that they strengthened my nerves. I took several boxes and felt better in every way. There were no more dizzy attacks, the neuralgia left me and I have been a well woman ever since."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable in anemia, rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fever and in sick headaches, nervousness, neuralgia, and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Our booklet "Nervous Disorders, a Method of Home Treatment" will be sent free on request to anyone interested. Write for it today.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

WEATHER ECCENTRICITIES

Some of the Discoveries of the Patient Newspaper File Investigator.

Files of old newspapers are very embarrassing to commentators on weather conditions. Men ripe in years but of treacherous memories are often in evidence, when the weather is not normal or reasonable, with emphatic assertions that such conditions never existed before, says the Baltimore Sun.

The public, which, as a rule, has neither the time nor the inclination to search ancient records, is then convinced that no preceding generation has had to contend with weather as capricious and phenomenal as the late spring frosts and early spring torridity of our own times.

But in time there appears the man who has a weakness for digging into newspaper files. This patient investigator has been operating in Cincinnati. He has discovered that on May 17, 1859, there was a blighting frost extending from the Mississippi River to the Eastern States. On June 5 there was another heavy frost, the wave of cold extending to the Atlantic coast. There was great excitement among the farmers, many of whom, believing their grain crops had been ruined, went into the market and bought flour. The frosts were followed by a period of excellent weather and crops were re-sown.

The memory of man respecting weather conditions in the past is rarely to be trusted. We have heard out of season and cold out of season, but if we go back to the records we will find that there is nothing new under the sun and that the weather has been behaving in an eccentric way for many years.

Naturally.

Nan—How do you like that young Mr. Fish?

Fan—O, he's such a cold blooded drop of oil!

Five Burning One Hundred Years.

The Chequers Inn, Osmotherley, is a relic of the old coaching days, but it is now famed for its fire, which has never been out for more than 100 years and over which griddle cakes are baked.

This huge fire is kept continually burning by peat or turf from the Yorkshire moors. An excellent tea is provided for visitors, the chief dainty being the griddle cakes. The peat glows like red embers on a red tiled floor, the griddle being suspended from a bar above, the whole looking most quaint and picturesque. The exterior of the inn is most unpretentious and Old World looking, as it nestles alone on the Yorkshire woods.

How Paris Gave Its Name.

The city of Paris owes its origin to the conquest of Gaul by Caesar. When this Roman general on his path of conquest came to the present site of the French capital he found a swampy island in the river Seine, which was inhabited by a Gallic tribe called Parisii, who lived in huts made of rushes. Rather than be captured by the Romans, these people burned their rude city, which they called Lutetia, or "mud town," and the great Caesar, quick to appreciate the situation, built a temple to Jupiter and a wall round the island. A town soon sprang up about the temple, and was named Parisii, after the ancient tribe. In later years this was shortened to Paris.

AN OLD EDITOR

Found $2,000 Worth of Food.

The editor of a paper out in Okla. said: "Yes, it is true when I got hold of Grape-Nuts food, it was worth more than a $2000 doctor bill to me, for it made me a well man. I have gained 25 pounds in weight, my strength has been given back to me, and that is an absolute essential, for I am an editor and have been for 35 years."

"My pen shall always be ready to speak a good word for this powerful nutritive food. I had of course often read the advertisements regarding Grape-Nuts, but never thought to apply them to my own use, until, in my extremity and sickness, the thought came to me that it might fit my case. The statements in regard to the food are absolutely correct, as I have proven in my own case. One very fortunate thing about the food is that while it is the most scientifically made and highly nourishing, concentrated food I have ever known, it has so delicious a taste that it wins and holds friends."

Mrs. John Mastell, 614 South Jefferson street, New Castle, Pa., says: "For years I was running down with kidney trouble without knowing what it was, and finally got so bad I was given up. The urinary passages were painful, sometimes scanty and again very profuse. My limbs, feet and ankles bloated dreadfully, and sometimes my whole body. My heart palpitated and I had another apoplexy. A week's treatment with Doan's Kidney Pills helped me and a few boxes cured me. At 68 I am strong and well."

How Paris Gave Its Name.

The city of Paris owes its origin to the conquest of Gaul by Caesar. When this Roman general on his path of conquest came to the present site of the French capital he found a swampy island in the river Seine, which was inhabited by a Gallic tribe called Parisii, who lived in huts made of rushes. Rather than be captured by the Romans, these people burned their rude city, which they called Lutetia, or "mud town," and the great Caesar, quick to appreciate the situation, built a temple to Jupiter and a wall round the island. A town soon sprang up about the temple, and was named Parisii, after the ancient tribe. In later years this was shortened to Paris.

Eight Cents Held Out.

Deanley—I hear that magazine gave you a good price for one of your stories.

Meanley—A pretty good price—$74.02.

Deanley—It's queer they made it such an odd figure.

Meanley—Oh, they sent me a check for $75, but they held on to the four 2-cent stamps I sent with the manuscript—Philadelphia Press.

Something to Be Explained.

Gayboy—No, dear, you are mistaken about my having had too much to drink last night.

Mrs. Gayboy—Then, for mercy's sake, why did you take off your shoes to go upstairs after I had gone down and let me in myself?—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

AN OLD EDITOR

Found $2,000 Worth of Food.

The editor of a paper out in Okla. said: "Yes, it is true when I got hold of Grape-Nuts food, it was worth more than a $2000 doctor bill to me, for it made me a well man. I have gained 25 pounds in weight, my strength has been given back to me, and that is an absolute essential, for I am an editor and have been for 35 years."

"My pen shall always be ready to speak a good word for this powerful nutritive food. I had of course often read the advertisements regarding Grape-Nuts, but never thought to apply them to my own use, until, in my extremity and sickness, the thought came to me that it might fit my case. The statements in regard to the food are absolutely correct, as I have proven in my own case. One very fortunate thing about the food is that while it is the most scientifically made and highly nourishing, concentrated food I have ever known, it has so delicious a taste that it wins and holds friends."

WHEN A GIRL'S IN LOVE.

There's Trouble Ahead if She Be Not the Right Type.

When the girl who knows better than her mother fails in love she is so self-opinionated that she makes huge mistakes which tinge her whole life with bitterness. Rather than listen to the impression her sweetheart makes upon her parents, or henken to the counsel they give her, she trusts to her own fallow judgment, and though there may be a hundred reasons against an alliance with the man she believes has won her love, no power on earth will turn her from her determination to be his.

Supposing brute force be directed against her to compel her to be saved from an adventurer, she will sink, mourn and resolve into a decline, so that the hearts of her father and mother will be wrung with misery. And all because a girl whose years number less than 20 believes she knows better than her mother.

To blame modern education for this sad lapse from the time-honored relations held by mothers and daughters throughout the ages would be unfair. Very often it is the mothers who are themselves to blame. They adore their little girls too much and praise their cleverness too openly for the child's good.

The absurd pitch to which child worship has attained is responsible for the arrogance and self-satisfaction of the twentieth century daughter. What child, pampered and bowed down before, as the child of this age is, could fail to grow up with east-iron opinions on the subject of its own perfections?

Education has all her work cut out to correct the immense self-importance of her pupils when they arrive under her tutelage, and even she fails to eradicate the ill effects of wholesale worship lavished on the young creatures of the nursery in their extreme youth.

ECZEMA COVERED BABY.

Worst Case Doctors Ever Saw—Suffered Untold Misery—Perfect Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"My son, who is now twenty-two years of age, when four months old began to have eczema on his face, spreading quite rapidly until he was nearly covered. The eczema was something terrible, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. At times his whole body and face were covered, all but his feet. I used many kinds of patent medicines, to no avail. A friend teased me to try Cuticura. At last I decided to try Cuticura when my boy was three years and four months old, having had eczema all that time and suffering untold misery. I began to use all three of the Cuticura Remedies. He was better in two months; in six months he was well. Mrs. R. L. Risley, Plimouth, N. H., Oct. 24, 1905."

Grand Army of the Republic.

Grayling, Mich., May 25. Governor Warner today signed a bill that ends the system under which the farmers of the state have built and repaired their roads since the days of the territorial government.

The bill was introduced by Senator Ely, himself a farmer. In the earlier days all farmers paid their road taxes by working a given number of days on the roads with their teams. Then, as the country became more prosperous many of them accepted the option of paying their taxes in money. But the system was always far from being satisfactory, because there were often scores of pathmasters in a single township, and they built and worked roads independently of each other, sometimes intelligently, sometimes otherwise.

The new law abolishes the office of pathmaster, and requires that in every organized township all road taxes must be paid in money. Each township is made a single road district. Two funds are created, a road repair fund and a permanent improvement fund. All road work shall be done under the supervision of one township road inspector who shall have one assistant. The town meeting annually shall designate the amount to be raised for the roads, but it shall not exceed 50 cents on each one hundred dollars valuation.

The Fate of Zion City.

More and more plainly as the days pass does it appear that the death of Dr. Dowie was the death knell of Zion. That was a city founded on a personality, created by the will of an Elijah out of a dream, and now the hour of awakening seems at hand. Never a business proposition; founded and conducted, in fact, in defiance of all business laws, the efforts of the receiver and federal courts to conduct it on business lines seems all but hopeless.

Dowie was Zion. His voice called his people to the bleak sand dunes and prairies of the north shore, and while they followed him they ignored hunger and poverty, the freezing winds and the burning sun. But with the old leader vanished the old necromancy. The sand dunes are sand dunes now, nor can a Voliva make of them a promised land. Hunger is no longer a cross to be borne for their creed, and poverty, not a consecration of the flesh.

From the ruins of the churchy Zion may be made a commercial village where pork is eaten and tobacco smoked; but what is to be run by the villagers and not "from on high," as some new First Overseeer may dictate. Dissension has opened the eyes of the people—for better or worse—and one more man-made creed and vision-made city must be added to the number that since the world began have sprung up and perished with their founder.—Chicago Evening Post.

Parties wishing to enter a newspaper office at this season of the year should be governed by the following rules: Advance to the door and give three distinct raps or knock the door down. The devil will attend to your alarm. You will give him your name, postoffice address and the amount you are owing for the paper. He will admit you. You will advance to the middle of the room and address the editor with the following counterattack: Extend your right hand about two feet from the body with the thumb and index finger clasped around a dollar bill, which will drop into the extended hand of the editor, at the same time saying: "Were you looking for me?"

The editor will clasp your hand and the bill and say, "For you." After giving him all the news of your locality you will be permitted to retire after your "devil" has brushed off your hat.

The Canadian government has notified the postoffice department at Washington that it will not be possible for the Canadian postal department to handle second class mail matter sent to that country from the United States by either express or freight and mailed there, as suggested by American publishers. In his letter the Canadian postmaster general, Mr. Lemieux, says: "The department has come to the conclusion that it will be absolutely impossible to continue the remailing privilege except at the rate of postage between the two countries—i. e., 4 cents per pound." Postmaster General Meyer says that as soon as a specific case of refusal by the Canadian government to handle American second class matter is called to his attention he will be forced, in the circumstances, to issue an order declining to handle Canadian publications in this country at the second class rate.

Friday, June 14, will be the one hundred and thirtieth anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the flag of the United States, to which fact the American Flag Association calls attention. The association was formed in 1897 to promote reverence for and to prevent the desecration of the flag. It also urges the display of the national colors. The governors of a number of states have called attention to the anniversary, and mayors of cities have urged the display of the red, white and blue.

Spasms St. Vitus' Dance

Many persons who suffered untold agonies from epilepsy, fits, spasms, and St. Vitus' Dance are today well. The strengthening influence of Dr. Miles' Nerve Tonic upon the shattered nerves having restored them to perfect health.

"I endured agony that words cannot express from St. Vitus' dance, which followed a very severe spell of rheumatism. I doctored with a physician, but the more I took of his medicine the worse I got. My mother's desire to see me better was so strong that she almost heart-broken, as well as physically exhausted from constant care, by the advice of a neighbor she procured a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nerve Tonic. From the first dose to the last a continual change for the better was noticed, and when I had taken eleven bottles I was well, and in robust health."

EDWARD D. BRAD, North Manchester, Indiana.

"Our little boy Harry had spasms for three years, and although we doctored with many physicians, he continued to grow worse until he had ten spasms in one week. About that time our attention was called to Dr. Miles' Nerve Tonic. We began giving it to him, and improvement seemed slow, but when he had finished the fourth bottle the spasms had disappeared, and he had been seen now for years. We shall always recommend Dr. Miles' Nerve Tonic."

The Citizens Band gave one of their popular concerts in the band stand in the court house park last Friday evening. It was the first night of the season when it was pleasant to be out, and more than 500 of our citizens took advantage of it, to enjoy the air and music.

A banner was strung across Michigan avenue last Saturday, inscribed "Base Ball Tomorrow." It was a gratuitous insult to the Christian people of the village, who are opposed to the desecration of the day, though a majority may believe it right, even if it be contrary to law.

Last Sunday morning the Presbyterian church was beautifully decorated with evergreens and flowers for the observance of Children's Day. The service was largely attended and very pleasant, the little ones exhibiting much interest and careful training.

In the evening the M. E. church was crowded for their similar service which is manifestly a correct training for their future good.

Rev. A. C. Kildegaard and wife left on the Monday morning train for Kimbalton, Iowa, where they will attend the annual convention of the Danish Evangelical church of America, from June 12 to 17. After which they will visit his parents, Kansas, and from there, enroute home, will stop at Gardner, Ill., to visit her parents. They bear the good wishes of our people for a pleasant trip.

Corn is the most valuable crop raised in the United States, cotton comes second, hay third, wheat fourth, oats fifth, potatoes sixth barley seventh. Probably the most neglected crop and the one that is capable of the largest increase of value is the hay crop.

"Tell me, doctor," asked the ambitious young disciple of Galen eagerly, "what was the most dangerous case you ever had?" "In confidence, now that I am about to retire from practice," answered the veteran physician frankly, "I will confess that it was my medicine case."—Puck.

One of those unreasonable men, who takes a newspaper a year or two and then sends it back "refused" was used by an up state editor a short time ago, and the judge gave a verdict for the plaintiff of full amount and costs. The court decided that notice to discontinue was not sufficient if the subscriber was in arrears. He must pay first.

THE REASON WHY

Gilt edge creamery butter is superior to all other butter is because the cream is furnished by practical up-to-date farmers using hand separators. Years of experimenting all over the world has proved that there is no way of removing the impurities from milk or cream except by running the milk through a separator.

When anyone tells you that butter made from the old fashioned gravity raised cream is just as good, don't let them impose on you. If your grocer can not supply you, insist on him doing so or call at the factory. Use gilt edge creamery butter for purity and quality.

Auditor General Bradley has received from the railroad companies during the past month and deposited in the treasury about three millions of dollars, and the balance in the Michigan strong box on the first of May was over seven million, without a dollar of indebtedness against the state from any source.

The auditor general reports the railroad taxes for this year now practically all collected, and the operation of the law with its penalty provisions for delinquency is justifying the wisdom of the legislature that framed it.

Chas. W. Ward of Queens, Long Island, who is a native of Michigan and a frequent visitor to Saginaw, has just given a $2,500 commission to E. I. Couze, of New York, the painter of Indian pictures and who is one of the most distinguished sons of Saginaw.

The commission is to paint the portrait of the old Chippewa chief, Shoppenagon's. Mr. Ward's father was one of the pioneer lumbermen of the state, and he himself has spent much time in the old pine woods. A wish to preserve the features of one of the last of a great Michigan tribe that has almost entirely disappeared, through the work of an artist of high rank, prompted him to his purpose.

Mr. Couze, who is now in the city will go to Grayling, which is Shoppenagon's home, and in the natural environment and setting of the AuSable river country, seek the inspiration for his work. The sittings will be at Grayling.

Methodist Church.

Regular services morning and evening.

Electric lights have been put in the church and on Sunday evening at 7:30 the pastor will preach on "More light" or "Man in a state of nature, the Jewish Hierarchy and the Christian Dispensation." Members of the Masonic fraternity will find things familiar to them.

All are cordially invited and according to an ancient custom in all churches you will be requested to deposit a quarter of a dollar or a dime or a penny to aid the repair funds of the church.

In the morning there will be the annual memorial sermon for the "Odd Fellows" who will attend church in a body.

Remarkable Rescue.

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." Guaranteed for coughs and colds. 50c. and $1.00 at L. Fournier's drug store. Trial bottle free.

Cedar Point, a summer resort near Sandusky, O., will be the scene of the national convention of United Spanish War Veterans, Sept. 9, 10 and 11. The change has been made. It is stated because of the inability of Oklahoma City, Okla., to fulfill promises made pertaining to arrangements for the convention. President Roosevelt, who will visit Canton to attend the McKinley monument dedication, will be asked to spend a day with the vets.

TWO MEN KIDNAP NUN

MAKE ESCAPE WITH HER IN WAITING CAB.

Some Teacher in Duluth School-room in Broad Daylight—Sister May Be Responsible—Mother Dear Makes Trouble.

Sister Bernice of St. Clement's Catholic school in Duluth was kidnapped by two men, who have disappeared. The sister was teaching in the primary room at 1:30 in the afternoon, when the two men entered, seized her and carried her half a block to a cab, thrust her in and dashed away. Her young pupils were spell-bound with terror and stood mute for several seconds. But when the sister was being borne screaming to the street they regained their senses and raised an outcry, which alarmed the entire neighborhood. Hundreds of persons gathered and gave chase to the fleeing carriage. Several blocks from the school it turned toward the hill and disappeared. The police were notified and every officer in the city was warned to look for the kidnappers. A special detail of six men was also put on the case, but no traces of the nun or her assailants had been found up to midnight. The abducted woman is 24 years old, and is the daughter of Edward Deagle, superintendent of the St. Paul Terminal railroad yards. He is a non-Catholic and opposed to his daughter's taking the veil. She was to make the final vow, binding her for life, on July 11. The children at the school, who greeted one of the abductors as "Father," it is believed that relatives are responsible for the abduction.

DEATH FOR KIDNAPERS.

Capital Punishment May Be Provided by Federal Laws.

Himself a father and an advocate of the rights of the home to the fullest extent, it is said that the President will make kidnapping the subject of a special appeal in his next message to Congress.

Many members of the national legislative body believe that the stealing of children to hold them for ransom or for the purpose of capital crime, punishable by death.

Whether President Roosevelt will go that far in his recommendations is known only by himself, but that he will speak for some adequate action is a certainty.

The police authorities favor such a law. They say that the kidnaper is the hardest of all criminals to apprehend.

The man who steals a child and keeps it near him ever has a power which holds the authorities at his mercy. The instant they make a threatening move or seem to be closing in on the quarry, the kidnaper has only to drop a letter in any mail box informing the police that unless they draw off he will kill the child. Then pursuit is paralyzed.

Stringent laws against kidnapping are more needed in the United States than anywhere else. In England and the countries of Europe the child whose parents have money enough to make it worth while to kidnap him is guarded like a precious jewel and there is little or no opportunity to get him. The exact reverse is true here. Under present conditions the risk sometimes seems worth while to a desperate man crazed for cash. If, as many lawmakers desire, kidnapping be advanced to the place of a capital crime, with the gallows or electric chair as a certain punishment, it would take a hardy criminal indeed to take the risk. The comparative ease with which murderers escape execution would not apply to a kidnaper. The American may have charity in a good many instances and perhaps make more allowances than he should, but the American father who sat in judgment on a guilty kidnaper would certainly find no mercy in his make-up when it comes to passing on the proper degree of punishment.

Fund to Fight Labor Unions.

During the annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers at New York, 300 members were present, and James W. Van Cleave of St. Louis presided. Secretary Cushing said they had fought successfully against further legislation for the eight-hour day and against court injunctions. Treasurer Stillman said the association now had an annual income of $150,000. A committee of thirty-six was appointed to raise $500,000 a year for the fund to be used in educating the public as to the right view to take in labor disputes. A poll of the 3,000 members on tariff revision showed about three to two in favor of limited and reasonable revision. Immediately after the next presidential election, President Van Cleave came out for a federal corporation law for all enterprises engaged in interstate business.

Notwithstanding the mobilization of a large Mexican army along the Guatemalan border within the past few weeks, the government of President Cabrera continued in its defiant attitude toward the demand made by President Diaz of Mexico. Intrenchments had been thrown up by the Guatemalan army, so as to command the town of Ocos, on the Mexican border.

The Mexican government has begun the massing of troops along the border of Guatemala, armed with Mausers and Maxim's, and it is understood that President Diaz and leading officials of Mexico sympathize with the insurrection against President Cabrera of Guatemala. Diaz is determined to stop the turmoil on his border and bring Guatemala to terms for the murder of Gen. Barillas while under the protection of the Mexican government.

The unrest which was evident in many parts of China has now broken into open rebellion in the province of Kwangtung, where several large towns have been attacked by the rebels, the residents being plundered and the public buildings destroyed. The movement differs from the Boxer outbreak of 1900, in that it is directed against the ruling dynasty, and not against the foreigners. Riots were especially severe in the Swatow district, and 10,000 heads, known as triads, took the field, headed by Gen. Sun, former tactical of Nanking. At Wong Kong every official was killed, while the German mission at Lien Chow was destroyed.

The Royal Geographical Society of London announces that an accurate survey of the mountains of the Moon in East Africa shows that the greatest and more important part of them lie in the Congo Free State, or on the Belgian side of the thirtieth meridian. This would bring Lake Albert Edward, which was named for King Edward when he was Prince of Wales, under Belgian jurisdiction. King Leopold is not disposed to make any concessions in view of recent English attacks upon his Congo policy. It is expected that the mountains and water courses will be renamed. The present geography of the section was based upon inaccurate surveys of certain explorers who had little knowledge of scientific surveying.

Premier Stolypin addressed the duma in response to a challenge from the socialists and members of all the left parties, numbering over half the body, remained outside during the discussion of the recent conspiracy against the life of the Czar. A resolution condemning terrorism was then offered by the constitutional democrats and passed. Recently the police raided the committee rooms of the radical members of the duma, and this caused great feeling. The radical leaders say that the stories of the conspiracy were faked in order to discredit the radicals in the duma.

In the mansion house at Dublin the convention of the Irish national party voted unanimously to reject the so-called home rule measure offered by Birrell for the liberal ministry. John E. Redmond, who presided, spoke against the bill and himself moved the rejection. He denied that any Irish member of Parliament had been committed to its support, although at the time of its introduction he withheld final judgment. The resolution of rejection pointed out that the production of such a measure, though inadequate, confirmed the position the Irish party had always taken. It calls for a native Parliament with a responsible executive.

HAYWOOD TRIAL ON.

Government Expert Tells How Riches May Be Won.

"A handful of wheat is worth less than a cent; and yet a single kernel of that handful may easily be worth half a million dollars. In it is not worth a little effort to discover which is the half million dollar kernel?"

The Assistant Secretary of Agriculture in Washington was explaining one of the wonderful things of modern plant-breeding science. Mr. W. M. Hays was brought up in the Minnesota experiment station and is one of the authorities on this subject.

"In fairy stories there were magic beans and magic beans, which had wonderful power concealed within them," Prof. Hays continued. "But nothing in those fairy stories is really more wonderful than the simple facts. The magic of heredity makes a single kernel of wheat equal to a gold mine, a single kernel of corn worth a king's ransom, a small and despised apple seed equal in value to the revenues of one of our richest commonwealths."

"It is the power to transmit certain qualities that gives the value. One seed has it and another has not. That is the whole proposition."

"Old Peter Glickson bought 10,000 apple seeds and grew 10,000 apple trees. There was one in the 10,000 that had the power to ripen good fruit in the Minnesota winter. That was the magic seed. That seed has been the parent of all the fruit in the great Northwest. Its latent power was literally worth a king's ransom."
